

COASTAL LINK TRAIL

The Coastal Link Trail is a volunteer-led route along New Brunswick's southwest coast. The project began in 2018 under the leadership of Darren Turner, a retired army engineer. The group received $1 million in provincial funding from the Department of Tourism, Heritage and Culture to help launch the project. In 2020, the first 1.4 km segment was completed along the St. Croix River waterfront in St. Stephen. This initial stretch of the trail was built by the non profit Coastal Link Trail Inc., which relies on donations to build the trail one kilometer at a time. The planned 171 km route includes 141 km shared with roads, 16 km of forest trails, and 14 km of off-road greenway trails. Overall, the trail reflects strong volunteer dedication and community support.
